HIGHLAND

A huge region that covers most of the Scottish mainland north of Glasgow and Edinburgh, you can expect subtle, oaky drams that express the dramatic coast and moorland, while still leaving room for rich fruitiness, honey and occasionally a little bit of peat and smoke.

$13 GLENMORANGIE 10YO

$16 DALWHINNIE 15YO

SPEYSIDE

These whiskies are often full of fruity, nutty flavours, and tend to be less peaty in character than other scotches.

ISLAY

Islay malts are pungent with smoke, brine and peat on the nose, but multilayered on the palate, displaying anything from mossy, peaty, floral mixes to peppery linseed and soapy hints.

$14 ARDBERG 10YO

$16 LAPHROAIG 10YO

LOWLAND

Lowland whisky is most commonly gentle and light, often lacking in any serious peaty flavours. These drams will often have a floral aroma while the elegant palate is very reminiscent of honeysuckle, cream and ginger with subtle hints of toast and cinnamon.
